

(2) Clare Hollingsworth in Edmonton sends cutting his brother in Toronto (Ralph) sent to him. Toronto Star, Thu. Nov. 9, 1989 p. A-14 cols 1-3 with 5½ by 8½ photo, article on Murdoch ("Bun") Hollingsworth, 79, of Truro, Nova Scotia, poultry farmer, holding fowls in his grip. He was judge at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, Canadian National Exhibition grounds, Toronto. "Old breeds were on display." (That reminds us of Granddad's barred rocks, Rhode Island reds, and white leg-horns (pronounced "leggerns") and the glass eggs in the nests we used to inspect 55 years ago - more in a later issue.) Murdoch Hollingsworth is likely from the Rathfriland, Co Down family, whose scion, Henry, settled at Musquodoboit, Halifax County, N.S. in 1785 on a land grant. The Massachusetts marriage above on p. 3, No. 2, is another one. See photo of Murdoch in our gallery.
